

Kennedy To Urge Many New Plans For Unemployed

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's program for the new session of Congress is expected to include a whole bundle of proposals for dealing with persistent unemployment.

Many of the plans that Kennedy is due to urge in his State of the Union and subsequent messages to Congress represent unfinished business—things he has proposed before. But some he is espousing for the first time.

The President has announced, for example, that he will recommend a multibillion-dollar public works program on a standby basis. That is, come another recession, he wants presidential power to trigger a broad job-making spending program in a hurry.

Similarly, it's reported the administration is considering a flexible income tax proposal—so that the White House could, also faced with another serious recession, lower income taxes to encourage purchasing power, then raise the taxes later after more prosperous times returned.

New Job Figures

New job figures due to be announced Tuesday will serve as a backdrop for these and other proposed domestic economy props. Some seasonal rise in unemployment is expected.

But the figures are expected to show national unemployment still is around four million and that the seasonally adjusted rate of involuntary joblessness remains at about six per cent.

The President and his advisers are convinced that, outside the human factors involved, it is an economic waste and handicap for the country to have a substantial portion of its work force jobless.

Accordingly Kennedy is expected to urge again that Congress:

- Extend industry more generous depreciation allowances to boost the economic growth rate and provide more jobs.
- Enact a broad manpower retraining bill—aimed at teaching new skills to adult workers whose present skills have become obsolete or are in oversupply.
- Authorize a youth employment opportunities program. This is designed to provide temporary-type work, even make-work jobs, for youngsters having quit school but who can't find employment. The idea is to keep these young people busy and out of trouble until better work comes along.
- Establish federal standards

Fishermen's Paradise Hit By State Cut

HARRISBURG (AP) — Cutbacks in the State Fish Commission budget will force the closing of hatchery on Spring Creek in Centre County and curtailment of stocking Fishermen's Paradise in the same area, Commission Director Albert M. Day reports.

The 1962-63 commission expenditures will total $2,402,875, compared with $2,869,565 in the current fiscal year.

The cutbacks reflect a drop in the number of fishing licenses sold. License sales are expected to decline to about 560,000 compared with 758,000 in 1953.

"We will be making a cut in all divisions," Day said. "The budget will be down about $288,000 for a comparable 12 month period."

The 1961-62 budget is for 13 months, the new budget will be for 12 months.

"We are going to have a reduction of about 150,000 in the fish we are going to stock," Day said, adding:

"Fishermen's Paradise will not be operated as it was. Part of it may be a nursery and part of it may be a fly-fishing only stream."

JFK, Clay Reach Full Accord On Berlin

Walter Sees JFK; Starts Busy Program

(Special To The Daily Record)

WASHINGTON — Rep. Francis E. Walter of the 15th Pennsylvania Congressional District starts off a busy week with breakfast this morning at the White House with President John F. Kennedy.

Walter is one of twelve members from the House and Senate to meet at the breakfast session to discuss the major points in President Kennedy's legislative program.

(As Congress gets ready to convene, there will be 258 Democrats and 174 Republicans, with five vacancies, in the House and 64 Democrats and 36 Republicans in the Senate.)

Later this afternoon, Rep. Walter will testify before the House Armed Services subcommittee concerning the Nov. 8 crash of an Imperial Airlines at Richmond, Va., at which time 29 Lehigh Valley Army recruits were killed.

Walter has said that the Imperial Airlines crash "has dramatized the financial unfitness, unsafe operation and law violations in the supplemental airline field."

This afternoon, the Netherlands government will honor Walter with its highest civilian award, given for the Easton Congressman's work on European problems. Five years ago, he received the Orange-Nassau Gold Medal from the Netherlands queen.

He has previously been honored by the Italian and Japanese governments, as well as the "Nations Behind the Iron Curtain."

The best of everything produced by Pennsylvania's 100,000 farms, which pump a lusty $800 million annually into the state's economy, will be on review five days and four nights in the largest exposition of its kind anywhere in the world.

Tomorrow afternoon, Walter will preside as chairman of the Democratic caucus at the party's first meeting of the second session of the 87th Congress. He is expected to nominate Rep. John McCormack, of Massachusetts, to be Speaker of the House.

Nescopek Hit By Heavy Winds

NESCOPEK, Pa. (AP) — This Luzerne County community was buffeted Saturday night and early Sunday by strong winds, causing damage estimated at more than $50,000.

The wind leveled a lumber warehouse and sent the roof of the building crashing into a laundromat across a street. Part of the roof also fell on a new automobile.

Operators of the Naugle Lumber Co. said damage to the warehouse would be $75,000. Dave Sittler, operator of the laundromat, said his loss was about $15,000, and a contractor estimated it as high as $25,000.

Many Probes Are Expected This Session

WASHINGTON (AP) — Regardless of the legislative record Congress makes in the session starting Wednesday, Senate and House committees will churn with investigations.

Subjects to come under congressional scrutiny range from crime and violence on television to trade with the Soviet bloc and the packaging of foods.

Drawing the most attention in advance is an inquiry into charges that the Pentagon has muzzled military officers who want to speak out against communism.

This investigation, scheduled to begin Jan. 23, will be conducted by a special unit of the Senate Armed Services Committee headed by Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss. It promises to be extensive.

Stennis has announced that Edwin A. Walker, resigned Army major general and a key figure in the controversy, will be among the witnesses.

Soviet Trade

Another investigation with a cold war tinge will be the continuing inquiry of the Senate Internal Security subcommittee into whether trade with the Soviet bloc is helping to build the Soviet Union's warming potential.

The Internal Security unit is taking a look also at a staff cutback in the State Department's security bureau and may examine pro-Castro propaganda and aspects of the controversy over U.S. policy in the Congo.

Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., has urged creation of a special committee to investigate U.S. policy toward the Congo.

The Senate Juvenile Delinquency subcommittee, under Dodd's chairmanship, is planning another round of hearings to wind up its inquiry into crime and violence in TV shows.

The subcommittee intends also to inquire into the effect of the narcotics traffic on juveniles and to conduct hearings on whether present laws make it too easy for minors, delinquents and others to obtain weapons.

The narcotics traffic and prostitution may be probed also by the Senate Investigations subcommittee of Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark. In an investigation of underworld rackets last year it focused on gambling.

Titusville Paper Increases Price

TITUSVILLE, Pa. (AP) — The Titusville Herald, a morning newspaper published six days a week, has increased its newsstand price from seven to 10 cents a copy and its weekly home-delivery rate from 45 to 50 cents.

The new prices went into effect Monday.

James B. Stevenson, publisher, said the increases were made necessary by higher operating costs.

Bloom Urges Legislature Solve Redistricting Plan

HARRISBURG (AP) — Republican State Chairman George I. Bloom demanded Sunday night that the congressional reapportionment problem be turned over to the legislature for solution.

He coupled the demand with a request that Gov. Lawrence call a special session of the legislature immediately to approve a bill realigning the state's congressional districts.

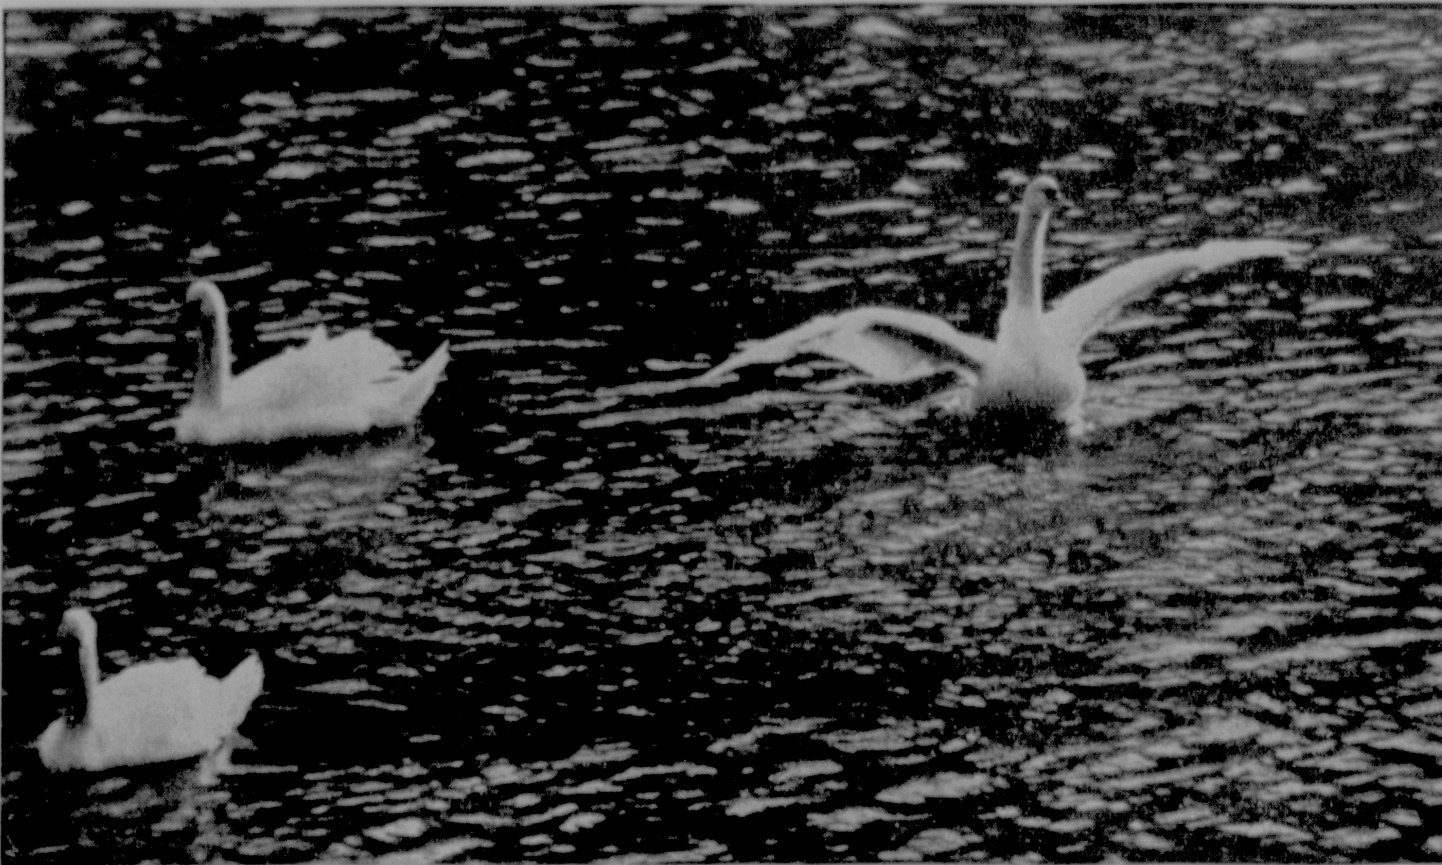

"If this matter had been left to the legislature to decide early last year, without outside interference, we would have had a solution now and there would have been no reason for a special session," Bloom added.

His remarks came on the eve of a scheduled meeting with Gov. Lawrence and Democratic State Chairman Otis B. Morse to discuss the problem.

Will Attend

Bloom said he would attend the session but expressed disappointment

SWAN LAKE — The Delaware River has been a resting place for the past several days for three Mute Swans, one male and two female. John Glasson of Bryant St., Stroudsburg, who, has been studying birds of this area for thirty years, claims that this is the first time he has ever seen the rare Mute in the Pocono area. Wild swans are found in the Hudson Valley and in the Long Island marshes near salt water. They winter in salt water where there is no ice to block the food supply.

State's 46th Farm Show Opens Today

HARRISBURG (AP) — Pennsylvania's vast and varied agricultural industry puts its best foot forward starting Monday at the 46th annual State Farm Show.

The best of everything produced by Pennsylvania's 100,000 farms, which pump a lusty $800 million annually into the state's economy, will be on review five days and four nights in the largest exposition of its kind anywhere in the world.

Prize livestock, produce and farm-home accessories almost literally fill to overflowing the sprawling show buildings, 14 acres under one roof.

Governor Lawrence, in a statement on the eve of opening day, said:

"The 1961 Pennsylvania Farm Show gives the citizens of our state the perfect opportunity to see, at first hand, the amazing growth, the vitality and the diversity of our agricultural products."

The show traces its origin to scattered exhibits of fruits and grains at annual meetings of a few farm organizations in Harrisburg.

It has grown to the point where some 35 farm groups will hold annual conventions, and exhibitions have increased a hundred-fold and include almost every breed of livestock and poultry.

Approximately 10,500 individual entries of farm and farm home products are set up throughout the maze of buildings connected by one roof.

Of these, some 9,950 will be eligible for prizes, including cash awards totaling $60,433.

Judging begins Monday morning, but the formal opening ceremonies will be held at night with Lawrence delivering a few remarks.

Despite poor weather, the all-time high of 675,000 visitors was recorded in 1955. The 1961 crowd was estimated at 645,000.

Fresh Vegetables From 20,000 Leagues Under Sea

GROTON, Conn. (AP) — Fresh vegetables 20,000 leagues under the sea?

No daydream out of Jules Verne, they are a part of everyday life for the men of the Navy's polaris submarine fleet.

Nothing beats a fresh serving of salad or a piping dish of peas and carrots while cruising under the ocean for 60 days, says the Navy.

And to make sure polaris crewmen get these lights during their long voyages, a method of growing lettuce, carrots and green peas on board the submarines has been developed by the Electric Boat division of General Dynamics Corp.

Garden Kits

The vegetables are grown in hydroponic garden kits—three-foot planters that look like large window flower boxes.

The seeds are planted in a chemical growth base and intense fluorescent lights are kept on them, Electric Boat explained.

The gardening experiments were conducted by Electric Boat under a contract from the Office of Naval Research. Five hydroponic garden kits have been shipped to the submarines' anchorage at Holy Loch, Scotland.

The polaris submarine Robert E. Lee carried a miniature garden on a recent cruise, and similar ones are being installed in other nuclear submarines, Electric Boat said.

How long does it take to raise a fresh crop of greens under the sea?

General Dynamics researchers say ruby lettuce can be grown in about three weeks, and carrots and dwarf peas in about four. Anyone for salad?

On Invasion Plans

Sukarno Scorns World Opinion

BONTHAIN, South Celebes (AP)—Declaring, "We don't mind if our action arouses the world," President Sukarno warned Sunday that Indonesia will invade West Guinea unless the Dutch hand it over.

As Sukarno delivered his tough speech, troop reinforcements poured into the South Celebes—jumping-off spot for any invasion. A flotilla of Indonesian destroyers was steaming this way, and informed sources said "volunteer" guerrillas soon will strike in New Guinea itself.

MAKASSAR, Indonesia (AP) — A bomb exploded a few hundred yards behind a motorcade of President Sukarno here Monday night, killing 3 persons and injuring 25 others. Sukarno was unharmed.

The blast occurred hours after Sukarno, in a speech at Bonthain, South Celebes, had warned that Indonesia would invade West New Guinea unless the Dutch hand it over.

"We don't care about international opinion," Sukarno told a crowd in this eastern Indonesian fishing village in the presence of U.S. Ambassador Howard P. Jones and nine other ambassadors accompanying the president on his tour.

Learn Of Move

At one point, Sukarno said he had learned the Netherlands intended to send the Karel Doorman, a 15,822-ton aircraft carrier capable of handling 35 warplanes, to New Guinea waters.

Turning to the foreign ambassadors, Sukarno declared: "I want you to tell your governments we are not afraid of the Karel Doorman. What can she do to stop us?"

12,000 Robins Floored After 'Frisco Binge

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The ravenous robins have struck again.

Thousands of hungry robins descended en masse on pyracantha bushes at various homes this weekend and stripped them of their winter-ripened red berries—with startling results in nearby Los Altos.

Apparently the berries around Los Altos, in addition to their attraction as food, develop a formidable alcoholic charge from fermentation.

An estimated 12,000 robins swarmed in Los Altos yards Saturday, gorged on the berries and many of them promptly got swacked, falling off rooftops, staggering drunkenly in the streets and otherwise conducting themselves in a most disorderly manner.

Across the bay in Oakland, Earl Lopez was astounded Sunday to see thousands of the birds covering his lawn, porch, shrubbery and even the street outside.

Lopez said the birds arrived about 8 a.m. Sunday, worked the berry bushes over for two hours and then most of them flew away. The Oakland visitation didn't seem to be attended by the alcoholic side effects reported in Los Altos. But many birds were so stuffed with berries they could barely fly.

Bay area residents are used to seeing their pyracantha bushes stripped every year but this time the raids were different in that the robins appeared in swarms numbering into the thousands.

Robins native to the Bay area do not migrate but the area attracts countless thousands of others from colder regions of the North and East.

The crowd laughed at this question.

"Bloodshed over West Irian depends not on us but on the Netherlands," Sukarno said. "We won't talk until the Dutch yield to our demands to hand over the administration area to us. Only then will we talk."

"But if the Dutch do not agree to talks on our terms there will be bloodshed. If they don't hand over West Irian we will invade."

The Dutch have offered negotiations without conditions, but Sukarno demands guarantees the Netherlands will hand over administration of West New Guinea before he will sit down at the conference table.

John L. Lewis' Daughter Dies

NEW YORK (AP)—Miss Kathryn Lewis, daughter of United Mine Workers' former President John L. Lewis, died Sunday in Wickersham Hospital here.

A hospital spokesman said she had been a patient for about a week.

The body is being taken to Washington for funeral services there. Her father, who was in New York Sunday, also planned to return to Washington.

Miss Lewis, secretary to her father, lived in Arlington, Va.

Handling Possible Crisis Is Reviewed

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy conferred Sunday with Gen. Lucius D. Clay on conditions in Berlin and Germany and reported they agree fully on how to handle possible crises effectively.

The chief executive talked for an hour with his personal representative in Berlin.

While Clay and Secretary of State Dean Rusk insisted Saturday that there are no policy differences between them over Berlin, there was little doubt that Clay still thinks the U.S. commander in the city should have greater authority to handle unexpected emergencies.

Again Sunday, following the Clay-Kennedy session, the word was passed that there is absolutely no controversy between the general, the President and the secretary.

Reads Report

White House press secretary Pierre Salinger read to reporters this statement by the chief executive:

"General Clay and I have had a most useful and satisfactory review of the current situation in Berlin and Germany. I have been very glad to get his report of the continuing staunchness of the people of West Berlin and we have talked at length about the ways and means of sustaining and strengthening the life of their great city in the future as in the past.

"We have also reviewed the general problem of effective handling of possible crisis situations and we have reached full agreement on the policy to be followed during these months."

"This meeting is one more way in which Mr. Rusk, General Clay and I can keep in the closest touch and we continue to be fortunate in having him as the senior American in Berlin."

Asked if the statement means Clay is fully satisfied with the situation regarding authority for the U.S. military commander, Salinger replied that the general read the President's statement and approved it.

Apparently Kennedy was anxious to dispel any idea of a deep rift within the administration over the handling of emergencies that might threaten Berlin.

The White House had said Saturday that the Clay conference would be pretty much unpublished, probably would be held in the White House proper and that there would be none of the press staff around the White House Sunday.

But Salinger and his number one assistant, Andrew T. Hatcher, showed up this morning along with another of the press office staff. Photographers were told by telephone they could take pictures of Clay and Kennedy. And word was circulated that there would be some sort of statement later.

The meeting itself took place in the presidential office rather than in the living quarters.

As the photo session broke up, Kennedy turned to Salinger and asked:

"Are you going to put that statement out?"

Salinger assured him he was.

Salinger told reporters afterward that he would go along with a statement that the conferences of the last two days, involving Kennedy, Clay and Rusk had worked out a unified approach to Berlin problems and how to react to them.

But he said he wouldn't get specific as to whether there had been any changes in approach decided upon.

Sen. Hays Seeks Lt. Governor Bid

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP)—Sen. Jo Hays, acknowledging a break with tradition by doing so, has announced his candidacy for the nomination for lieutenant governor on the Democratic ticket in November.

Hays, whose second term as senator from the 34th district of Centre and Clearfield counties expires this year, issued a formal statement Saturday.

"I realize that it is not conventional to announce oneself as a candidate for this office," Hays said.

"However, the office has been made by recent lieutenant governors none of greater significance, and, for this reason, I think that the members of the party should have the opportunity of acquainting themselves with the qualifications of those being considered."

The 63-year-old educator-lawmaker, a native of York County, resides in State College.

Experts Say There's Still Room In Nation's Colleges

By G. K. HODENFIELD
WASHINGTON (AP) — College doors are closing, but not so fast nor so tightly that a qualified high school graduate can't still get in. Six experts in the field of college admissions had that message for parents Sunday in a booklet, "Your Child and College," published by the National Education Association.

If family hopes are pinned on one of the highly selective, highly competitive private colleges, the booklet said, there may indeed be cause for concern.

But, it added: "Somewhere in the nation there is still space in an accredited college for every high school graduate."

The final selection of a college rightfully belongs to the student, the booklet said, but parents and high school counselors should point out what needs to be considered: Size, location, cost, facilities, admission requirements, and the kind of intellectual demands placed on a student.

Parents must face up honestly to the question of whether their youngster has the desire and the ability to do college work.

For some youngsters, the expert said, this choice might be a two-year junior college, with the possibility of going on to a four-year college later. And if the youngster doesn't want to go to college at all, there is not much point in pushing him into it.

Some of the points the authors made:

The most important factor of all in choosing a college is whether that college is right for your youngster in terms of his motivations, goals, abilities, interests, needs and personality.

Remember that a college education should prepare a student for living as well as earning a living, and that wisdom is an even more valuable commodity than knowledge.

Whether a college is smothered in ivy is of no great importance.

Help your youngster realize that his success does not depend upon admission to any one particular college.

You may have graduated from the best college in the world, but that does not necessarily make it the right college for your son or daughter.

Don't be unduly influenced by the recommendations made by relatives, friends or business acquaintances.

Don't let the mating instinct control your child's choice of a college. Graduates of women's colleges are just about as likely to marry as graduates of coeducational institutions.

Even if there is only enough money for one or maybe two years of college the willing and able student should go ahead with his college plans.

U. S.-Britain To Discuss Future Of United Nations

LONDON (AP) — The United States and Britain will trade views this week on what role the United Nations must fill in world affairs—and how it may change without actually bending the Charter.

British authorities say Washington talks Thursday and Friday stem from President Kennedy's meeting with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan in Bermuda last month.

Defining the scope and purpose of the coming meeting, one authorized informant said: "There will be an examination of broad U.N. principles and the way they are being applied. We will be taking a forward look at the future direction of the organization. But there is no question of Charter revision at this stage."

American officials in Washington, on the other hand, appear to place more emphasis on the need to strengthen U.N. peacemaking machinery.

There have been Anglo-American tactical differences over the U.N. role in the Congo and over attitudes to be taken toward the postures of the Afro-Asian bloc. The two allies in addition do not always see eye to eye over some of the political issues before the General Assembly.

One of the senior British delegates at Washington is the undersecretary at the Foreign Office, Duncan Wilson, formerly charge d'affaires in Peking. His presence suggests the question of Red China's entry into the world body may be discussed. Unlike the Americans, the British want the Chinese Reds in.

Other British officials attending under Ambassador Sir David Ormsby-Gore include John Tahourdin, head of the U.N. department, and Sir Alan Dudley, a specialist in aid and technical cooperation matters. Britain's main U.N. delegate, Sir Patrick Dean, like Adlai E. Stevenson of the U.S. team, also will take part.

Officials argue that some Afro-Asian states are endangering the future of the United Nations by over-readily attacking colonial powers, including Britain, and by ignoring their own misdeeds. Lord Home has said India's venture in Goa dramatized the "crisis in confidence" through which the United Nations is passing.

American officials, on the other hand, have displayed greater readiness to back up the world body in critical situations like the Congo. And they have come up from time to time with more positive and precise proposals to make the U.N. more effective. In general, though, the United States shared Britain's concern over the way Afro-Asians sought to justify India's entry into Goa.

A British source said he doubted whether Ormsby-Gore's team will come up in Washington with firm proposals for reforming the United Nations.

Korean Vets Dividend Still Open

MAILING of nearly $30 million in special dividend checks to 400,000 Korea Conflict veterans holding "W" type GI insurance policies is now virtually complete, John S. Gleason, Jr., Administrator of Veterans Affairs, said today.

However, more than 200,000 Korea veterans are still eligible for this special dividend. They hold "RS" type GI insurance policies and must convert to or exchange for "W" type insurance before September 14, 1963, in order to qualify for the special dividend.

On or after that date, while they may still convert to a permanent plan "W" type policy or exchange their temporary policy for a lower premium term "W" type policy, they will not be eligible to receive the special dividend.

Each of these "RS" policyholders will receive a letter from the VA early in 1962 explaining the advantages of changing to "W" type policies.

"RS" insurance was issued to Korea veterans discharged between April 25, 1951, and December 31, 1956, as five-year term policies not eligible for dividends. The new type "W" policies were established in January 1959.

"W" insurance, VA emphasized, is non-participating and therefore not eligible for regular dividends. A bill signed into law September 13, 1961, authorized the special dividend now being paid from an available surplus in the non-participating fund. There will be no further dividends on the insurance.

Veterans will not have to write the VA concerning their "RS" policies since they will receive word from VA directly. A flow of correspondence may delay the actual processing of the "RS" policies.

World's Longest Liner In Trials

SOUTHAMPTON, England (AP) — Out of the early morning mist on the English Channel 1,035 feet of France—the world's longest liner—floated into Britain Sunday.

The 66,000-ton giant had made her first channel crossing. She is on her final trials, Capt. Jack Holt, French Lines pilot who docked the France, said: "She handled beautifully. She has no bad habits at all."

New York will get its first look at the France early in February. Long and low in the water and sleek in black and white paint, she looks the perfect ocean greyhound. Her odd feature is the fins, like short wings, attached to her red and black funnels. Their job is to deflect exhaust fumes away from the decks.

Water Gap Woman Ends 25 Years In Post Office

By TONY CESARE

"I'LL JUST have to re-adjust myself," said Mrs. Helen Lehr over the weekend as she ended a 25-year career as senior clerk of the Delaware Water Gap Post Office.

After a quarter of a century of faithful duty to the public, Mrs. Lehr regrets most of all leaving the "many interesting and pleasant people" with whom she had daily contact.

"I have never tired of serving the public. This is my only regret in retiring but I think I will be able to adjust as I have many plans to enjoy the rest of my life," she stated.

Mrs. Lehr won't be away from people completely, however. Among her endeavors are to be more active in church and civic affairs. After thirty years at the Gap, she has seen children grow up, get married and then served the children as she had the parents.

From July 7, 1936 until yesterday, Mrs. Lehr had missed only one day in serving the residents and business of the hamlet.

Only the devastating flood of August 1955 forced her to miss a perfect record of attendance. Through the years, she has served under four U. S. Presidents — Franklin D. Roosevelt, Harry S. Truman, Dwight D. Eisenhower and now President Kennedy.

Mrs. Lehr is the wife of Arthur B. Lehr. The Lehrs have a daughter, Mrs. Lorraine Farber and a son, Robert Lehr, both residing in Delaware Water Gap. They also have two grandchildren.

She is the daughter of Mrs. Mary Carhart of Levittown and the late Harry Carhart.

Mrs. Lehr witnessed the postal business rise from a third class post office in 1936 to a first class operation in 1962. Much of the growth can be attributed to the businesses of Waring Enterprises Shawnee Press, Ronson Corporation of Pennsylvania, Glenwood Hotel, Coates Board and Carton Co., Inc., and a number of other concerns which set up business within the area.

In addition to the class rating, Mrs. Lehr said she has watched the office's progress from yearly receipts of $8,000 in third class, to $30,000 in second class and to present first class rating with receipts of over $37,000.

Mrs. Helen Lehr Hands Out a Letter

Thinking back over the years, Mrs. Lehr noted that her first boss was postmistress Mrs. Edna J. Brodhead with whom she served for 18 years until 1954. When Mrs. Brodhead retired, the post was succeeded by Joseph Hauser on Oct. 31, 1954. Mr. Hauser was confirmed to the post in May 1956.

"Just five years ago today (Jan. 5) Ronson Corp. moved to Delaware Water Gap and it has been a pleasure serving this firm, as everyone is so pleasant and appreciative," Mrs. Lehr stated as she posed for the Daily Record photographer.

Her pleasant moments were many, but what was the most exciting one, she was asked.

"You know," she said, "the time that armed robber came in and robbed the post office." "It happened on Jan. 12, 1959," Mrs. Lehr said as she quoted the date and the event as if it were yesterday.

At the time, the bandit had entered the building on the Main Street, and passed a note which read: "I'm sick. Give me those money orders or I will blow a hole in you as big as a potato."

Shortly thereafter, he snatched up $1,400 in postal money orders (14 of them at $100 each) and fled.

For Mrs. Lehr, this was the only unpleasant person she had to meet during her years at the post office.

Yugoslavs Hold Yule Celebration

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—Thousands of Serbian Orthodox Yugoslavs celebrated their Christmas Sunday. Churches were jammed with worshippers, who saluted each other with the traditional Christmas greeting: "Christ was born"—to which the reply was: "Indeed He was born."

The obligatory Christmas dish—roasted suckling pig—was served at most tables.

Communist Yugoslavia does not officially observe religious holidays and even on Christmas work goes on as usual. But this year Christmas coincided with Sunday, allowing Christmas celebrations at home.

Pa. Bankers Assn. Endorses Kennedy's Plan Of Taxation

HARRISBURG — The plan of President Kennedy and U. S. Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon to tax savings and loan associations on the same basis as other businesses, including commercial banks, was endorsed and supported today by Donald Z. Wade, President of Pennsylvania Bankers Association.

The program is scheduled for consideration by the House Ways and Means Committee when the Congress reconvenes in Washington on January 10, said Mr. Wade, who is president of The Bank of Matamoras.

President Kennedy outlined the importance of the subject in his tax message to the Congress last April, saying "Some of the most important types of savings and lending institutions in the country are accorded tax deductible reserve provisions which substantially reduce or eliminate their tax liability."

The President added that these "provisions should be reviewed with the aim of assuring nondiscriminatory treatment."

PBA President Wade underlined the problem by stating that "The average Pennsylvania savings and loan association, which is a member of the Federal Home Loan Bank, paid $271 in Federal income tax in 1960, or less than 0.5% of net income."

after dividends paid to shareholders. In the same year, the average insured commercial bank in Pennsylvania paid $103,908, or 37.0% of net income."

The U. S. Treasury Department has estimated that if the tax loophole benefiting savings and loan associations and other mutual organizations were closed, the Government would realize $400 million in tax revenue.

"This figure is more than 10% of the additional defense expenditures recommended by the President as essential to national security," said Mr. Wade.

Treasury Secretary Dillon implemented President Kennedy's plan for tax equality in a detailed study of tax provisions applicable to savings and loan associations and other mutual organizations which was provided to the House Ways and Means Committee for its use in drafting a bill to remove the present tax problem. PBA President Wade said, in his support of the Administration's program, "We consider the Treasury Department's study to be an excellent appraisal of the present inequitable tax situation among competing financial institutions."

"We commend the Treasury Department for its effort toward equality of taxes on banks and savings and loan associations. It is the American way to have each business bear its fair share of our Government's costs," Wade declared.

In a final comment on the situation, Wade said, "Many individuals with modest incomes pay much more in income taxes than some of the largest savings and loan associations in the country."

Optimism Grows In Attempt To Solve Congo Differences

By ADRIAN PORTER

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga, the Congo (AP)—There is more optimism in Elisabethville now than in many months that Katanga's differences with the central Congo government can be solved.

Hopes of a settlement have been raised by the apparent willingness of President Moise Tshombe and his Katanga assembly to accept a place as a province of the Congo and not a secessionist state.

The only obstacle seems to be the United Nations' role in carrying out Security Council and General Assembly directives to remove foreign mercenaries and advisers.

While Tshombe is reported willing to get rid of his mercenaries, given a peaceful settlement, he has told diplomats here that expulsion of his white advisers would mean inefficiency in government and a possible breakdown in administration.

He simply does not have enough Africans to take their place. Nor does he believe the United Nations can provide replacements.

A commission was set up by the Katanga assembly to investigate the agreement Tshombe reached recently with Congo Premier Cyrille Adoula under which Katanga would recognize the central government's authority. The commission approved most of the agreement, but through Tshombe, it asked the United Nations to send representatives to the commission to clarify the U.N. attitude on enforcement of the resolutions and to advise if some compromise can be reached.

U.N. officials here say the United Nations is likely to be more than willing to assist in this.

Observers believe the differences between Katanga and the central government will be thrashed out at forthcoming meetings of the Congo Constitutional Commission, for now the basic issues remaining appear to be constitutional.

The Katanga government's desire to cooperate with the Leopoldville regime is avowedly sincere. Proof of good will, officials point out, is the way Katanga representatives in the central government Parliament continue to be sent to Leopoldville and the constant demand by deputies of the Katanga assembly to have as many opposition members as possible attend the present session.

Katanga's wish to end the differences spring to a great extent from a feeling of hopelessness in trying to go it alone.

A deputy told newsmen on the opening day of the Katanga assembly session: "Frankly we are sick and tired of this wrangling with Leopoldville and having the United Nations on our neck all the time. It seems we have got to climb down so we want to do it as graciously as possible."

Another important factor in Katanga is fear that bickering and war ultimately will kill the province economically. The outpouring of the great mineral wealth of Katanga has been drastically slowed since the start of the fighting with U.N. forces a month ago.

Plants of the huge Union Miniere closed in Elisabethville and are down to a third of capacity in such other big mining centers as Jadotville, Kolwezi and Kipushi. Without Union Miniere production, Katanga will lose what power and prestige it has.

A senior Katangan economic official said Union Miniere headquarters in Brussels is now inclining to the view that it would be better to throw in the company's lot with the central government instead of backing what now seems to be a lost cause in Elisabethville.

"The Union Miniere was appalled at the idea that Tshombe might carry out his threat to destroy Union Miniere installations in the face of the U.N. attack and wreck Katanga completely," the official said.

Van Zandt 'Available' For Draft In Governorship Race

ALTOONA, Pa. (AP) — U.S. Rep. James Van Zandt says he will run for re-election this year in the 20th Congressional District and added that he still could be a candidate for governor or the U.S. Senate.

In making the announcement Saturday the Altoona Republican said he will be "available" for either nomination in a draft.

Van Zandt said he feels he would have solid support across the state in a race for governor. He declared:

"After many months of exploring the political situation in Pennsylvania through conversations with literally several hundred people in all walks of life, I find the majority are of the opinion I should be a candidate for governor of Pennsylvania or for re-election to Congress . . ."

The veteran congressman said confusion over the problem of re-apportionment of the state's 30 congressional districts and confusion among Republican leaders over drawing up a statewide ticket led him into the decision on the three races.

The 20th district is made up of Blair, Centre and Clearfield Counties. The Senate seat Van Zandt referred to is currently held by Democrat Joseph Clark.

Accused Embezzler Says Two Others Got The Money

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A taproom owner testified Saturday that about $200,000 in bets placed with him by a bank teller accused of embezzlement were "laid off" to two men arrested in the investigation Friday night.

Charles R. McDevitt, 30, told U.S. Commissioner Edward Furia that the bet money was shuttled to Samuel J. Miller, 41, a cocktail lounge owner, and Elias Dubas, 49, a bowling alley proprietor.

Both were held in $25,000 bail on charges of aiding and abetting embezzlement and conspiracy.

McDevitt said the bets were placed with him by Joseph W. Barnes, an $88-a-week head teller, who is accused of embezzling $374,000 from a branch of the First Pennsylvania Banking and Trust Co. Barnes has said he used the money to buy stock and to gamble on sporting events.

McDevitt told the commission that he had laid off $400,000 in other money with Miller and Dubas, who were the fifth and sixth men arrested in the embezzlement investigation.

Closer All The Time

At a meeting in Dover, N. J., on Friday, a group of interested legislators and citizens began an action aimed at speeding-up the construction of Routes 80 and 78 in New Jersey. It is interesting to note that, as a matter of interstate cooperation, representatives of the Keystone Shortway Association were in attendance.

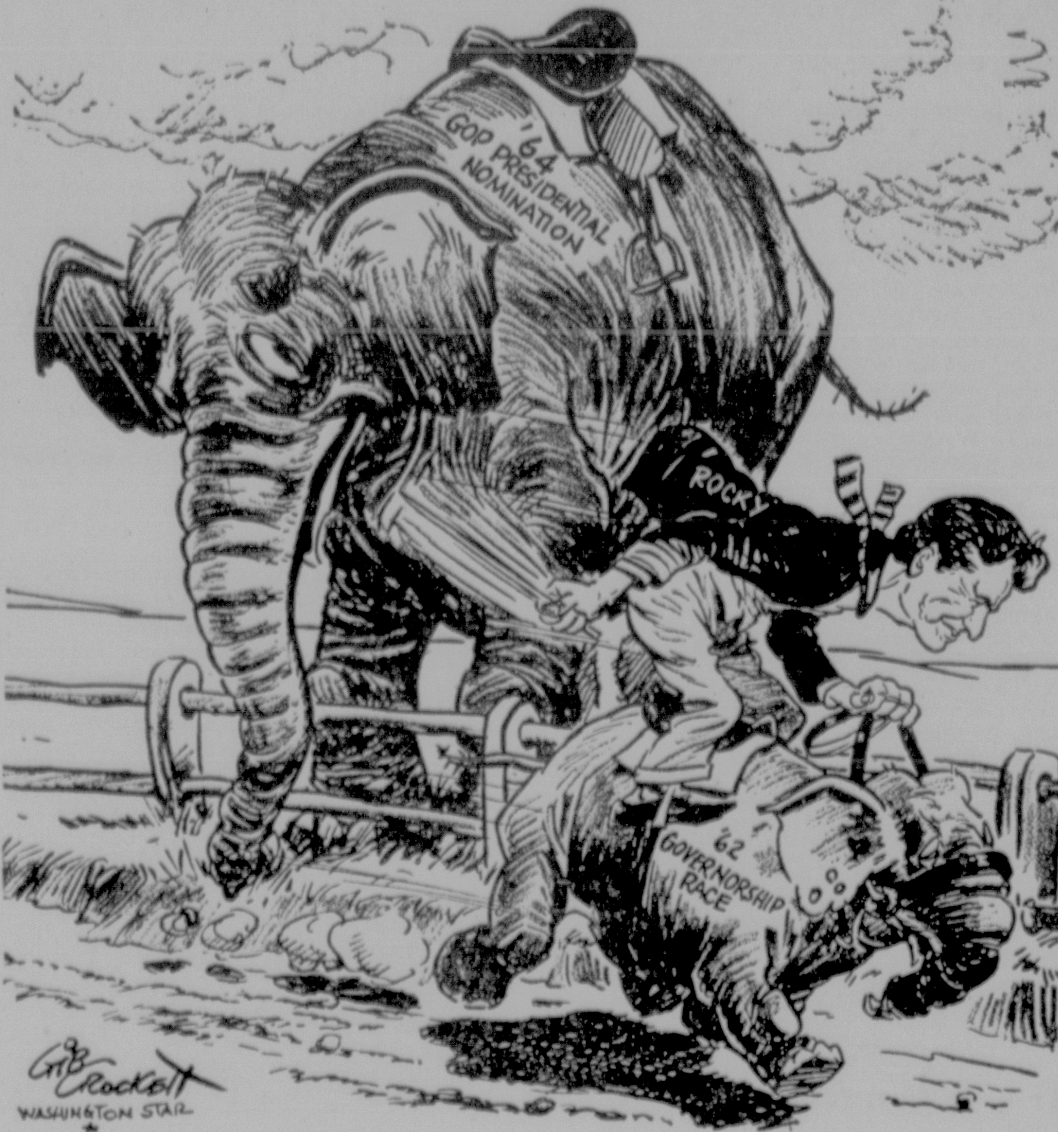

With our own Keystone Shortway nearing completion, traffic coming to this area is seeking a better link between here and New York City. The construction of Route 80 in New Jersey will provide this needed link, and bring the metropolitan area right to our doorstep. It is well that Pennsylvania officials lend their support to the project.

The potential of our section of the Delaware Valley has become so vast in recent years that many of our residents have been caught napping, and time has almost passed them by. However, with the diligence and alertness of some Pennsylvanians, the construction of new highways has been uppermost. Constant plugging at the doors of our legislative halls has resulted in many highway improvements in our area, not the least of which are the Keystone Shortway and our own Stroudsburg Thruway.

With the advent of the Tocks Island dam and reservoir, and the tremendous boost to be given recreational facilities in our area, it would be well for all of us to have an avid interest in making the area easily accessible to our city cousins. The access highways must be provided for them, since this is an age of speed and the vacationist heading for our beautiful hills does not want to travel on a horse-and-buggy road to get here. He wants to get to his destination quickly and safely so that he can relax.

Every area resident should do all in his power to support the modern highway program that is planned to bring the metropolitan areas closer to our vacationland all the time.

In Training For Bigger Things?

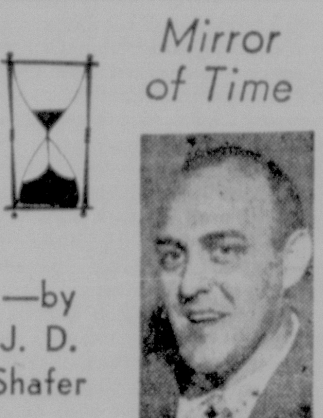

By MASON DENISON

Harrisburg — As the 46th Pennsylvania State Farm Show opens today here in Harrisburg for a week's stand in the sprawling 14-acre-plus Farm Show Building — an air of contradiction and a touch of the ironical hovers overhead.

This year the great agricultural event — which annually attracts more than a half-million visitors during its five-day stand — has been dedicated, in the words of the State Farm Show Commission, "to the century of progress made possible through the land grant universities of the nation."

And . . . the Pennsylvania State University, one of the first land grant institutions, is due special honors from all citizens of the Keystone State.

Penn State is Pennsylvania's land grant university. Penn State, along with other land grant colleges and universities throughout the land, this year is celebrating what these institutions of higher learning refer to as the "Century of Progress" — that is, recognition of the signing of the Land Grant Act in 1862.

A Hazleton construction firm was awarded a bid to build a three-lane highway from Stroudsburg to Tannersville on Route 611. The bid was $895,000.

The Office of Price Administration reported there were some areas in the country that were having a sugar shortage. The OPA blamed it on people in those areas who were trying to hoard the sweet stuff.

The Pennsylvania Story

Air Of Contradiction

In other words, the 1962 Pennsylvania Farm Show this year—appropriately—is dedicating its theme to Pennsylvania State University.

And yet, certainly something that paradoxically in this year of dedication to the "greatness" of Penn State and other land grant schools throughout the nation, here in what Penn State President Eric A. Walker had to say the other day following presentation by Governor Lawrence of his budget to the Legislature—in which Mr. Lawrence cut $4 million from the $24 million request submitted by the university:

"In effect, the budget message asks Penn State to operate in 1962-63 with four million dollars less than its carefully estimated needs. Without fuller support the University will have to cut back its freshman admissions again, freeze total enrollment at its present level, and postpone once again the research Pennsylvania needs to strengthen its competitive position in an ever-changing economy."

Governor Lawrence, in his budget message last week:

"The mental health program, which is such a pressing responsibility, will require the expenditure of more than $113 million for the 12 months of the 1962-63 fiscal period."

Governor Lawrence, again in his budget message:

"The Governor's Committee on Education, in its excellent report issued last spring, recommended that public expenditure for education in Pennsylvania practically be doubled by 1970."

Penn State President Walker the other day:

"Until the Commonwealth meets its obligation more fully there is nothing the university can do except mark time and learn to live with year-by-year indecision regarding a Master Plan for higher education in Pennsylvania. This unfortunately concludes the kind and type of planning that is essential if Penn State is to do what Governor Lawrence's Committee on Education said it should do to help educate the college-going youth of Pennsylvania during the critical years ahead."

What now, for Penn State which already has the highest tuition fee of any land grant college or university? President Walker has to say:

"Four times in the last six years the university has instituted tuition boosts to allay this problem. With a restricted state appropriation, it has no choice now except to look to its fee structure again."

There is of course yet another answer. The Legislature, which has final say on all fiscal matters (regardless of what a governor may urge or recommend) can give Penn State the funds it requests to meet its needs.

It's one or the other—certainly a somewhat ignominious choice under the circumstances. In this year of "Century of Progress" specially honoring land grant institutions such as Penn State!

The dedicatory theme of the great Pennsylvania Farm Show opening here today within the shadows of Capitol Hill points up the paradox more clearly than anything else could!

Try and Stop Me

The older one gets, notes a philosopher in Colorado, the further he had to walk to school when he was a boy, and the colder were the winters. My own dad claimed that he walked across the Brooklyn Bridge in the blizzard of 1888. Every time he told the story, the snow drifts that he battled were two feet higher.

London has been having its beatnik problems, too. Which explains the gusto with which the London Evening Standard reported this overheard bit: First beatnik: Like I had a great and novel emotional experience yesterday. Second beatnik: What was it? First beatnik: A bath.

Overheard: In a prison cell: "I think it's time we had a frank talk, number to number."

In a brokerage office: "We're giving you a raise, Millicent, because we want your last week here to be a happy one."

In a psychiatrist's sanctum: "When, my poor fellow, did you first discover that you enjoyed paying your income tax?"

In Washington: "You know the Pentagon: it's that mammoth building across the Potomac with five sides—on almost every issue."

"Who SAYS I don't do my exercises regularly in the mornings?" demands an indignant Jackie Gleason. Immediately after awaking, I always say, sternly to myself, "Ready, now. Up. Down. Up. Down," and after three strenuous minutes I tell myself, "Okay, boy. Now we'll try the other eyelid."

The disillusioned bride of an always thirsty ham actor told her friend sadly, "Oh he's a matinee idol all right. He does one matinee and then he's idle for a month."

"And now my poor husband thinks he's Shakespeare," mourned a long-suffering wife to the family head shrinker. "A harmless delusion," observed the latter. "The heck it is! He's disputed the wife. He won't let me bring bacon into the house."

About Town

Purely Personal Notes: After sliding down 200 feet of icy driveway on the holiday to get the letters in the mailbox, what does one find? You're right! A federal income-tax blank which adds insult to injury by saying on its first page: "Without Taxes there would be no civilization."

A Note on Fonances: A prominent banker told me that probably the most important reason for the jump in savings interest rates in this area is the desire to keep foreign money deposited in this country.

Of Vice-President Johnson, a Comic Quips: "He gets into his plane and tells the pilot, 'Go anywhere—we got troubles all over.'"

From the 17th century: There are few good women who do not tire of their role.

Two secretaries were discussing their problems over a cup of coffee. One of them said, "All I asked the boss was, 'Do you want the carbon copy double spaced too?'"

Will Resume Tests

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott
Washington—The warhead of the Army's Nike-Zeus anti-missile missile, in the final stages of development, is the first of the nuclear weapons to be tested in the new atmospheric shots slated for the Pacific.

The Army has notified the Joint Task Force, commanded by Major General Robert Booth, that the Nike-Zeus warhead will be ready for testing in late February.

This new warhead is in the kiloton range. A kiloton is equivalent to 1,000 tons of TNT.

This series of momentous atmospheric tests, this country's first since the voluntary moratorium announced by President Eisenhower in October 1958, will be conducted by the Joint Task Force at Kwajalein in the Marshall Islands. The Army has constructed a $250 million base there, equipped with an extensive network of radar-tracking and other electronic facilities.

Main purpose of these warhead tests is to prepare for a spectacular "duel" between a Nike-Zeus and an intercontinental ballistic Atlas-D missile.

The Army's anti-missile missile, fired from Kwajalein, will attempt to intercept an Air Force 18,000 mph Atlas, launched from the West Coast, and knock it out of the air.

Two other series of atmospheric tests are contemplated.

One, probably in March, will be on Christmas Island, Britain's nuclear testing site, some 1,200 miles south of Hawaii. The other will be at a Pacific location still to be determined.

Reason for this uncertainty is the magnitude of the proposed tests.

They are to be in the 50 megaton range, and as great or larger than Russia's super-bomb tests last fall. A megaton is equivalent to 1 million tons of TNT.

The U.S. has such super-bombs in its nuclear weapons stockpile, but has never tested any. That is now being strongly urged by Defense Department experts and Atomic Energy Commission scientists to ascertain the exact destructive capabilities of these armaments.

These tests would be air-drops from high-flying bombers.

Tough Problem—Since the Joint Task Force was set up on direct orders of President Kennedy it has been scouring the Pacific for a possible site for these super-bomb tests.

Kwajalein has been ruled out because of the likelihood of damage to the Army's costly equipment there. Similarly, Britain's Christmas Island is deemed undesirable because it is too close to the populous area of Hawaii.

For that reason, the series of tests to be held on Christmas Island is deemed undesirable because it is too close to the populous area of Hawaii.

For that reason, the series of tests to be held on Christmas Island will be limited to weapons under 19 megatons—approximately 10 million tons of TNT.

In the past, most of this country's Pacific tests have been at Eniwetok and Bikini in the Marshall Islands. But two factors are now barring their use—State Department objections, and prolonged lack of maintenance of their testing facilities.

Much time and money would be required to restore their usability. Under the late Secretary John Foster Dulles, the State Department vigorously objected to further use of these islands for nuclear testing on the ground they are United Nations trust territories administered by this country. Congress, on the recommendation of the Joint Atomic Committee, voted funds to maintain the testing facilities, but the money was not spent.

When the Kennedy Administration came into office, that policy was continued. Now it finds these islands are not available for early nuclear testing.

Also, the State Department is still against it for the same reason Dulles was.

Another possible testing site that has been ruled out is Johnston Island, owned by the U.S. but even closer to Hawaii than Christmas Island.

Under consideration by General Booth's Task Force are super-bomb tests from ships or giant barges stationed in safe areas. A major drawback to this plan is that it would be very costly.

However, valuable time could be saved as these tests could be quickly organized.

No decision has been reached on this critical problem. The Task Force is still looking for a safe and adequate testing site. General Booth expects to submit his findings by the end of this month.

Meanwhile, preparations are proceeding for the Nike-Zeus warhead tests at Kwajalein in the latter part of February, to be followed by a series of more powerful tests at Britain's Christmas Island in March. These shots, in turn, are to be followed by super-bomb tests at a still-undermined site in the Pacific.

The first tests will be in the kiloton range; the second series under 10 megatons; and the next up to 50 megatons—or more.

The largest test at the Nevada proving grounds was 75 kilotons.

Fallout—Representative Chet Holifield, D. Calif., chairman of the Joint Atomic Committee, has ordered a probe of the failure to maintain the nuclear weapons testing facilities at Eniwetok and Bikini. The policy of both the Eisenhower and Kennedy Administrations will be thoroughly scrutinized. At the Committee's instigation, Congress voted several million dollars to keep these testing sites in condition, but both Administrations failed to do so. . . . Senator Bourke Hickenlooper, Iowa, senior Republican member of the Atomic Committee, is telling colleagues he will relinquish this seat if he wins the chairmanship of the GOP Policy Committee. . . . The Joint Committee has new large and handsome-furnished offices in the reconstructed section of the Capitol. One of these offices is a spacious, specially-equipped chamber to be used solely for executive (secret) meetings.

Inside You And Yours

Are You Afraid?

By Burton H. Fern, M.D.
How could they expect her to work in a little cubicle? The walls would close in on her!

Nan had claustrophobia—fear of enclosed places. Perhaps you fear open places (agoraphobia), heights (acrophobia) or fear itself (phobia).

Emotional strain triggers all kinds of fears when you're afraid of failure.

Mom used to call Nan her perfect little lady. And Nan felt obliged to be perfect. She didn't want to disappoint Mom. Everyone had to agree that she was perfect. Otherwise she'd worry. She was afraid to try anything new. She might fail and not be perfect!

Mom didn't even notice. She was too busy protecting her perfect little lady.

Doesn't Remember
Nan doesn't remember accidentally locking herself in the bathroom. And how her scream told everyone she wasn't perfect. But her unconscious mind remembers that little room with terror!

This terror was tailored to order. What a perfect unconscious excuse to avoid the possibility of failure!

No wonder she couldn't work in little offices!

Long talks with an understanding friend, doctor or psy-choanalyst can help you learn why you're afraid to fail. And why you hide behind some unreasonable fear!

Bull sessions with other phobia victims help, too. It's easier to get in the swim when you're all in the same boat.

Start Easy
You have to gain confidence. Try little things first—shopping in a small store, a crosstown bus trip and eventually a jet flight.

No drugs and alcohol! They're crutches, too.

Nan's done well. She's now executive secretary, with her own little office. Most phobia victims can succeed if they don't trip over their own fear.

Don't Be Perfectionist

Help your children to accept and overcome fear. Don't expect perfection. Sports and games teach them to lose with honor. Show them how adventurous life can be.

And you don't have to worry about being the perfect parent, either!

Dr. Fern's mailbox is wide open for letters from readers. While he cannot undertake to answer individual letters, he will use readers' questions in his column wherever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Fern in care of this newspaper.

Chips On A Shoulder

From Newsweek: "Rivalry for the headlines seems to be part of the spark behind the growing militance of Negro anti-segregation groups. This is the explanation advanced here for recent inflammatory remarks from the Rev. Martin Luther King, normally a champion of Gandhi-style passive resistance. In one speech, Mr. King said that if Negroes did not make faster progress, they would turn either to Communism or the rabidly anti-white Black Muslims."

There goes another King.

From an Editorial: "Nehru is having a problem making India's attack on Goa plausible."

Yes, the hardest thing to explain is a knife in the back.

United Press Int'l dit-dotted: "Miami: Castro declared Cubans will resist any attempt to overthrow him. 'Hear it well, Mr. Kennedy,' shouted the Premier. 'If you have learned nothing else, learn the lesson of history.'"

Fletcher Knebel's typewriter sparked: "No wonder they call it U. S. foreign policy. The more you try to figure it out the more foreign it gets."

Reading For 'Tired Eyes'

Those who have been trying to attend to our morals while they clean up our reading (of books, that is) really needn't have bothered—they could have waited until the announcement by the New York Public Library of a list of recommended books for people "with tired eyes".

The library has found among the thousand of books upon its shelves just 200 that are satisfactory for its purpose. They have "wide margins, clear type and generous spacing." That's fine, and means, probably, that they have about 150 words to a page. Certainly there should not be more than 150 pages to such a book, lest one wearies too soon to spend the rest of the evening watching television.

It strikes us that this is the best way to sponsor reading that can be imagined. What can you say, controversial or otherwise, in books of that size? What line of thought can you develop? How can you communicate with the reader?

Freedom Of The Press

A reporter is required to report what he believes is the truth and he is responsible for what he writes. When an Ambassador calls a reporter into his office and complains that his published reports do not correspond with the Ambassador's reports to the State Department, the reporter should notify his publisher who should print the story of the illegal interference on the front page of his newspaper. When an Ambassador tells a reporter that the latter is confusing "liberalism" with Communism, the reporter should tell the Ambassador to go to the Devil after reading to him the First Amendment to the Constitution.

A reporter tells me that when he described "Che" Guevara, then an adviser to Jacobo Arbenz of Guatemala, as a Communist and that Guevara was a liaison between Arbenz and the Soviet Embassy in Mexico City, the Ambassador was particularly annoyed. This Ambassador was ultimately removed and the issue is not the particular man who was succeeded by a first rate anti-Communist. The issue is the danger that comes to the United States when such men hold important offices and a President and a Secretary of State depend upon them for information and guidance.

It is an error of judgment for the President or the Secretary of State to assume that those who call attention to returning Communists or Fellow-Travelers are imitation Joe McCarthys. It is the United States that needs to be protected and when men are appointed to office solely because they were dismissed under pressure by McCarthy, the United States may suffer. McCarthy must have been right about some things. Certainly the IPR investigation was not conducted by Senator Joe McCarthy but by Senator Pat McCarran. None of this developed in the Eisenhower or Kennedy Administrations but goes back to 1952 and it seems silly to bring up this old stuff now for the sole purpose of giving a job to someone who had either been a Communist or had used bad judgment.

No one who realizing the seriousness of the moment wants a renewal of the excitement of the McCarthy days; on the other hand, whoever permits the gang that brought on that excitement by their treacherous conduct to return to office, is not serving this country. It may be true that some are emotionally pledged to support and protect those who have "suffered" because of Congressional investigations, but the fact remains that the peril becomes very grave to this country when small men O.K. appointments and policies about which responsible men only know when they read what they are responsible for in the newspapers.

It is now not important which Administration has been for the suppression of facts. What is important is that we find out who the little boys are who set themselves up to play at greatness. Unfortunately the American people are as weary of what they call the Extreme Right as they are of the Extreme Left, extreme or moderate. Sooner or later, facts will come out. Even in a dictatorial country like Soviet Russia, the facts ultimately come to the surface, as Khrushchev told what he knew about Stalin or as Trotsky wrote in his magnificent history of the Russian Revolution.

The politician who believes that he can cover up errors. There is always a leak, always an exposure of horror at discovery. It is usual for the politician to seek to destroy truth by calling it gossip, hearsay, but the wise man never rejects gossip or hearsay or rumor until he is sure that he is not being tricked.

The political genius of modern times was, beyond doubt, Talleyrand who established the European system that prevailed for a century. Talleyrand always found ways of uncovering those who tried to make France a lesser country. He never permitted himself not to know and it was because Talleyrand created so effective an intelligence service that France survived through all the frightful years from the Revolution to the Congress of Vienna.

Talleyrand was never tricked by incorrect data, for he believed no one person but an indisputable fact. He knew that the usual weakness of a politician was to deny, to delay investigation, to mistranslate and mislead so that those on top were betrayed by their own underlings. No man is more clever than his access to intelligence.

Deadline For Estimated '61 Tax Is Monday, January 15

THE deadline for calendar year taxpayer's paying the last installment on estimated Federal income tax returns for 1961 is Monday, January 15, 1962, John H. Rauhen, Jr., Acting Director of Internal Revenue for the Scranton District, reminded taxpayers today.

If they have previously filed estimated returns and events occurring in the last quarter of 1961 indicate that their income will be substantially more or less than their original estimate, they should file amended declarations by January 15, he said.

The declaration, he added, should be marked "amended" and filed with the same District Director of Internal Revenue who received the original declaration. A blank amended declaration is printed on the back of the notice of payment due which the taxpayer received by mail.

Mr. Rauhen said an original declaration of estimated tax for the year 1961 should be filed by January 15 on Form 1040ES by taxpayers who first became liable for filing an estimate during the fourth quarter of 1961.

However, Mr. Rauhen said, a taxpayer who is required to pay an installment, to file a declaration, or to amend a previous declaration in the last quarter of 1961, need not meet the January 15th deadline if he files his 1961 income tax return on Form 1040 and pays in full the balance of tax he owes on or before January 31, 1962.

If taxpayers have any other questions about their estimate or Federal income tax returns, they may telephone their local Internal Revenue Office at the Post Office Building, 7th and Ann Sts., Stroudsburg, he advised.

The painting is twelve by fifteen inches done chiefly in pastel colors and those who have been privileged to see it pronounce it both beautiful and authentic. It is the possession of Mrs. George Hauser and shows the village as it looked when she first came here to live. She had it done as a Christmas gift for her son, Donald Hauser, of Portsmouth, Va., an officer in the U.S. Navy.

The Limited Budget

Q. I am a middle-aged secretary. My salary is $100 a week. My friends all scoff at me and say the world is passing me by, because I own no stocks. But I am of the opinion that, in my financial position, I cannot afford to buy stocks.

A. Aside from $10,000 in a savings account and government savings bonds (most of which were given to me by my family) here is the weekly (or weekly) way I watch my pay check go: income tax and Social Security, $23; rent and utilities, $25; food, $15; car operation and upkeep, $8; savings for next car in seven years, $7; savings for vacation, $7.

This leaves $12 to cover the costs of insurance, gifts, amusements, laundry, clothes, dentist, doctor, etc. How can I possibly buy stocks?

A. It's clear that you can't, because you can't afford to—out of your weekly pay check. You are budgeted pretty close to the vest. Frankly, I can't see anyplace where you can cut back on current expenses—unless you are willing to change your standard of living.

However, you could use some of the money you now have in the savings account and savings bonds to buy some good, reasonably-conservative common stocks. With $10,000, you have an exceptionally high cash reserve, for someone with your income.

That money in savings and bonds does not protect you against inflation. You could easily put a couple of thousand dollars in good, reasonably-conservative common stocks. Ask a reputable broker for some suggestions.

Coast-to-Coast NEWSPAPERS SELL THE MOST!

But, whatever you do, don't go off the deep end. Don't try to be a "trader," who buys and sells, buys and sells. Pick some good stocks and stick with them. Don't let your friends' scoffing get you down. The world isn't passing you by. Everybody doesn't own stocks.

Q. Just what is a "cyclical" stock? Would this term apply to General Motors and U. S. Steel?

A. A cyclical stock is a stock whose market price rises and falls pretty much in line with the "business cycle." In other words, it is a stock whose price will go way up when the nation's economy is booming and whose price will go way down, when business conditions are bad.

You understand, of course, that this applies to almost all stocks—to some extent. But it applies to some more than others.

GM and Big Steel were once cyclical stocks. These companies, like many others in "basic industries," would make a lot of money in boom times and wallow in red ink when business in general went into a slump.

These two are still counted as somewhat cyclical stocks—but not nearly so much as they were some years ago.

Like many other companies, they are more diversified. They have more efficient production facilities. Even when the economy takes a tumble, these and many other well-managed companies continue to produce reasonable profits.

All this, of course, is reflected in the price movements of their stocks. The market price of these stocks move in line with the ups and downs of our over-all business cycle. But, in recent years, their stock market prices have not shown the drastic gyrations they did in the past.

New Engine Gives Much More Power

A NEW SERIES of Swedish Volvo sedans featuring more powerful engines, 12-volt electrical systems, disc brakes and a variety of other engineering advances is now available at Baylor Motors, 798 N. 9th St., Stroudsburg.

Called the "B-18 Series," the new Volvo sedans have just arrived from the factory in Gothenburg, Sweden, according to John Baylor of Baylor Motors.

In announcing availability of the new Volvos at his showroom, Baylor said:

"Previous Volvo models were just about perfect. They built a strong reputation here for giving high performance under even the most difficult operating conditions for many years. Volvos are quality cars.

"As were their predecessors, these new B-18 series Volvos are built in that quality tradition. I believe them to be the finest automobiles in their price range in the world today."

As is the practice among many European manufacturers, the new Volvo sedans incorporate extensive engineering and technical improvements while retaining, with minor modifications, the basic body styling of previous models.

Heading the list of improvements is the introduction of a new 90 h.p. engine in both the Volvo two-door and four-door models, the PV-544 and the 122-S respectively.

An in-line, overhead camshaft, four cylinder unit, the new engine not only provides an increase of five horsepower over the previous Volvo engine, it also offers increased fuel economy and a boost from 87 to 106 ft. lbs. in torque.

The increased fuel economy, bringing the fuel consumption range up to 25 to 30 miles per gallon, is accomplished as a result of the addition of several important engineering and design features usually associated only with racing or other high performance engines. These include addition of two main crankshaft bearings to bring the total number of bearings to five, full machining of all combustion chambers, addition of two intake ports resulting in direct induction to each cylinder, and a variety of other technical refinements.

Turning from the new B-18 engine to other new features of the new Volvo sedan line, the next major change to be noted is the jump from a six to twelve-volt electrical system. This system, which is common on American cars, provides easier cold starting and more powerful illumination.

In support of this new electrical system, Volvo has also increased the power of its starting motor to a full horsepower and added a 360-watt generator, which is one of the most powerful on the market.

One major engineering improvement which is being incorporated in the Volvo four-door 122-S sedan, but has not as yet been added to the two-door

PV 544, is the addition of disc brakes in front.

Of the same type as those on the recently introduced Volvo P-1800 sports coupe, the disc brakes on the new 122-S provide the rapid cooling for which this type of brake is famous, with resultant elimination of brake fade.

Rear brakes on both the four-door and two-door models remain of the drum type.

In order to increase braking efficiency on the two-door sedan, the primary brake shoe has been shortened and the overall drum brake area both front and back has been increased.

Common to both new models is an increase in clutch size from the previous eight inch diameter to eight and one-half inches, adding considerably to the ruggedness of this highly essential component.

Contributing to the achievement of higher speeds in all gears, while lowering fuel consumption, is a new rear axle ratio for both Volvo sedans of 4.10:1.

In line with the increased horsepower of the new B-18 engines, instrumentation of both Volvo sedan models has also undergone some changes. Heading up the list is increased calibration of the speedometer to cover mileage up to 20 m.p.h. Top speed of both cars is in excess of 100 m.p.h.

The warning lamp color system on both cars has also been changed so that the oil pressure warning lamp now flashes red and the direction indicator lamp green.

In addition, a combination windshield wiper and windshield washer control has been introduced on the four-door 122-S model. The new control has three positions, the first two of which regulate wiper speed. The third position actuates the windshield washer, which is an inexpensive option.

While exterior changes in both the two-door and four-door sedans will probably not be noted on quick inspection, there have been several significant modifications.

To begin with, all Volvo sedans will now be available in a wider range of colors including: red, white, blue, mist green, fawn, black and gray. All colors will be solid, eliminating the two-color combinations on the 122-S of last year.

The front grill of the 122-S has been enlarged by fitting a narrower center pillar and narrowing the chrome rim around the grill. On both models the EXTERIOR CHANGES on new B-18 Series Volvo 122-S sedan include fitting of a narrower center pillar and chrome rim on the grill to facilitate more rapid cooling and introduction of an amber directional flasher in combination with the white parking lights. All B-18 Series Volvo sedans will also carry the B-18 symbol on both the front grill and the rear of the car. Popular PV-544 model also carries new 90 H.P. engine and 12 volt electrical system. All three models of the Volvo line are on display at Baylor Motors, 798 N. Ninth St., Stroudsburg.

grill itself now has a larger mesh to facilitate cooling.

The front direction indicator lights have also been improved on both models. This improvement has taken the form, on the two-door model, of moving the lights slightly outward on the fender and providing more robust fittings.

On the four-door, the directional lights have been made larger and have been modified to provide amber light for the directional flashers and white light for the parking lights, another addition to the long list of built-in safety factors for which the Volvo is famous.

Interior changes include a new easily washable plastic interior roof, new upholstery color combinations, more robust ventilation window locks, sturdier door handles and various other minor refinements.

No Problem

THE TREND toward big window areas was made possible by modern hydronic heating—the sun-like warmth that is nature's own way of providing comfort. The low height of baseboard panels permits them to be installed under picture windows. In this location baseboards encircle the home with a weather-guard barrier against winter's worst efforts, says the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau.

Wood Makes The Best Floors

Of the caveman was probably the first human being to discover how uncomfortable rock can be to walk on all day long. He quickly found that bear skins took up some of the shock.

But it remained for some of his later and more sophisticated descendants to invent the wood floor as the ideal walking surface for a home, school or store.

The Romans were long on culture and so were the early Greeks, but they never got away from the marble slab floor, probably because there was a shortage of wood in their regions.

There is no shortage of wood, reports the West Coast Lumbermen's Association, in the United States, and the only reason for the flurry of slab floors built in houses after World War II was convenience for builders who could lay a slab floor quicker than a good wood floor could be built.

Now that competition in the home selling field is becoming tougher, the lumbermen report, builders are being forced to listen to their customers. They now must give them wood floors, the lumbermen observed.

Many Interests Lead To A Varied Career

By Roberta Fleming Roesch

For all the people who hit the bull's eye with successful careers because they wrap themselves up in a single interest, there are others who hit the target equally well by spreading their interests in many directions.

Novelist Mary O'Hara, author of "My Friend Flicka", who recently switched to musical composition to write the book, music and lyrics for her musical, "The Catch Colt", is definitely one of the latter.

"All through my growing-up years, I divided my interests among books, the piano, the violin, story telling and writing musical compositions," the slender, dark-haired writer told me. "My rector father used to warn me constantly that my interests were scattered all over."

Happy Results

But scattering her interests all over has added to the fulfillment of Mary O'Hara's life instead of detracting from it. In the beginning, while both she and her children were young, she settled on story-telling as her main vocation.

To get her start professionally, she began as a reader for M.G.M. Then, before she had worked very long, she became a full-fledged script writer herself.

Later, after her film-writing experience, Mary O'Hara turned novelist and wrote, among other things, "My Friend Flicka", "Green Grass of Wyoming", and "Thunderhead". Movies were made from all three books, and all of them were translated into many languages.

Television, Too — "My Friend Flicka", upon which a television series has been based, was translated into 78 languages.

During the years Mary O'Hara concentrated on her writing career, however, she continued to scatter her interests among the many things she likes to do.

Consequently living, for her, has included traveling, marriage and children, helpin' run a ranch in Wyoming, winning golf trophies, riding horses, caring for animals, planning and building her present house in Connecticut around a view, spending time with people and following her interest in cuisine.

But, always, while she has been following these interests music and musical composition have been her avocation. Despite her writing schedule, she has found the hours to study composition seriously. "The Catch Colt", a folk tale of the Wyoming plains where Mary O'Hara herself lived for 15 years, is the musical result.

Earlier this year, "The Catch Colt" was produced in Washington, D. C. Following this debut, the troupe and orchestra went to Cheyenne, Wyoming, and performed during that city's "Frontier Days" celebration. Now, quite naturally, the author has her eyes cast on a future New York performance.

Still Eager — "All around me I see so much I like and so many things I want to do!" she said.

"And whatever your vocation is, you lose so much and leave out so much if you don't extend your self beyond your career and scatter your interests around enough to do some living, too."

(If you're interested in receiving my pamphlet on writing as a career and my list of books on writing, send me your request and a stamped, self-addressed envelope in care of this newspaper.)

I love to walk along Main Street and look in our Wyckoff windows. Just the other day I was quite enthralled with a display of glamorous party dresses and jeweled accessories, when one of my friends prodded me and observed, "You look like a kid at a pastry window... you'd never guess you WORK with those things all the time."

I giggled and agreed maybe she was right. My eyes must certainly have reflected the desire I was feeling at that moment to be Sweet Sixteen... dressed in red... and off to some light hearted, gala event. But those sizes in the window were not for me anymore, even though the color and style pleased my taste.

Now comes news that many of the beautiful party dresses and basics on the racks of Mardee Albert's department are marked down... way down... which is surely a temptation for those of us who haven't had really festive dresses in our wardrobe for far too long. Made to sell from 10.95 to 29.95, they are being offered from 20 to 30% off regular price. Mardee tells me the fabrics are not only miracles and blends, but also quality crepes and wools. We had some brocades that were very eye-catching in our holiday stock too... but I won't venture near the dress department to see if they're still there.

Why should I succumb, when I know I don't need a "party" dress, and that my one basic will serve me well the remainder of this season? YOU go instead, and indulge your whims... I'll simply enjoy seeing how lovely you look!

There's a very rich-looking painting of flowers hanging in our Advertising department with the signature "D. Dunn". I naturally assumed Dottie, of our switchboard entered it in our 25th annual Wyckoff Art Show opening next Saturday. But no! She says she brought it in to varnish it, and is too shy about her work to put any of it on display. My personal suggestion is that, if this is the case, she add "hill" to the end of her name and confuse everyone. Dottie says no, but maybe she'll sign one "D. Dunnit". And we truly hope D. Duz-zit!

Dottie has passed along to me an invitation from Mrs. Claude Leister to attend the annual dinner meeting of the Monroe County Council of Churchwomen in the dining room of the Stroudsburg Methodist Church on Friday evening, January 16th at 6:30. A play, "No Hiding Place", directed by Mrs. Harry Smith, will be presented in the parish hall following dinner.

I'll be delighted to attend, not only because I know and admire many of the women from the dozen or so churches of our county who are united in this organization, but because I favor ever-increasing unity among the various faiths. Until people of all faiths and all opinions learn to understand and appreciate one another, and to work together, we're not going to be much nearer world peace than we are right this minute.

Which is the very thing Marion Roeder, new president of the Women's Auxiliary of Shawnee Presbyterian Church, was discussing in my office the other afternoon.

Myers Picked For All-America Grid Tilt

First Area Player Picked For Honor

HAROLD (Mach 2) Myers, East Stroudsburg High School halfback, has been selected as one of 44 players to take part in the 14th annual National High School Football Classic.

The game will be held May 19 at a site to be determined later. However, it is believed that this year's game will be played in the Cotton Bowl in Dallas.

Myers, who led East Stroudsburg in scoring and ground gaining last season, is the first Pocono area player to be invited to play in the game, which is sponsored by the Wigan Wisemen of America, an Oklahoma City group.

North vs. South
Last year's game was played in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. Previous games have been held in Corpus Christi, Tex., Memphis, and Baton Rouge. The game pits a North team against a South club.

Man great college and professional players have taken part in the prep classic, which is directed by Max Simms. The players include, Les Richter, Los Angeles Rams; University of California; Jim Mutscheller, Notre Dame; Baltimore Colts; Marion Campbell, Georgia; Philadelphia Eagles; Hugh McElhenny, Washington University, San Francisco 49ers; Rick Casares, University of Florida, Chicago Bears; Bart Star, Alabama, Green Bay Packers; Jim Taylor, LSU, Green Bay Packers; Nick Pietrosante, Notre Dame, Detroit Lions; Bill Cannon, LSU, Houston Oilers and Marlin and Mike McKeever, USC.

Myers will receive a round-trip airplane ticket to the game site and will be housed in one of game city's better hotels. He will also receive a 17 jeweled watch and will be allowed to keep his jersey from the game.

Each player must participate in every quarter of the game, so that all players are given an equal opportunity to perform.

No coaches have been named for the game, which draws an average of 16,000 fans a game. Last year Sammy Baugh of the New York Titans coached the North team and Horace McCool of Delta State College of Mississippi coached the South squad.

Myers scored 11 points in 10 games last season and gained more than 1,800 yards. Most of his touchdowns were scored on long runs.

In 1960, Myers was named to the honorable mention squad of the All-America team, along with teammates Vince Patella and Jack Fellman.

THE Presbyterian Auxiliary did not meet the first Tuesday night in the month because of its nearness to the New Year. The women will meet at the home of Mrs. Francis Drake the night of January 9.

Christmas mail reveals that Mrs. Fred Kellerman, widow of the man who was the barber in Water Gap for years, is now residing in Cornwall Heights, Pa. She is with her daughter Ellen, widow of Senator John Light. Mrs. Light who before her marriage taught school in the borough, now is teaching in her new home section and enjoying it greatly.

Bad roads did not keep Mr. and Mrs. Orien Lambert from coming back to Monroe County for Christmas Day, from their new home in West Pittston. They spent the day in East Stroudsburg with their son-in-law and daughter and grand children; Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Smith, Dorothy and Donna Smith. Also present were their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Lambert of Stroudsburg and the brand new grandson; also Mrs. Simeon Mosier of Water Gap. The Lamberts say the Pittston folk are very friendly. Mrs. Lambert is doing volunteer work at the Pittston Hospital and has joined their Auxiliary and a city Women's Club.

MRS. Iona Keiper who has been in General Hospital since before Christmas, recovering from a heart attack, will remain in the hospital for two more weeks; so her friends can address their cards to her to the hospital.

Townfolk are expressing approval of the idea presented to the borough council by the new mayor, Arthur Lehr, that the Rim Road be made a scenic attraction. They are pleased that the council passed such a resolution. The re-elected councilmen and the mayor were honored by having a gallery of citizen on-lookers when they were sworn into office. Rev. Raymond Poorstra, pastor of the Methodist Church, was pressed in to service to offer an opening prayer before proceedings began, according to the pattern set by the President of the United States when taking oath of office.

Dear Abby

A Different Outlook

Dear Abby: The woman who signed herself "Very Very Hurt" because her husband sent her a birthday card which read: "Happy Birthday to a Swell Fella on HIS Birthday," shouldn't have felt hurt. My most cherished possession is a birthday card I received from my 8-year-old son. He erased his own name from a birthday card he had received months before, and he wrote my name on it. Then he wrapped up his "life savings" (two dimes and a nickel) and gave it to me with a note, "From your children," meaning himself, his 3-year-old brother and an 8-month-old sister. I could never spend that 25 cents, Catherine.

HURT" to develop a sense of humor. It's no crime to grab the wrong card when you are in a hurry. On my wedding anniversary I received a card which said, "There never was a better brother. Get well fast." My husband and I still laugh over it. SENSE OF HUMOR

Dear Abby: I know that it is possible to send the wrong card on an occasion that requires a greeting. When our first baby was born I received a lovely baby gift, and with it was one of those printed store-bought cards with the following message: "Sorry to hear about your ACCIDENT!" Best wishes, ADELLE

Dear Abby: Tell "VERY, VERY

signed herself "VERY VERY HURT" because her husband sent her a birthday card which read: "Happy Birthday to a Swell Fella on HIS Birthday" should not take it so seriously. On Mother's Day I received a card from my daughter. It said, "For One Who Has Been LIKE a Mother to Me." We all got a big kick out of it and I wasn't even slightly hurt. VERY VERY THANKFUL

Confidential To "Lost In Texas": Do not confide in family or friends. See a physician!

Lackawanna Gets Grant Of $6,814

HARRISBURG (AP) — A state grant of $6,814 was approved Friday for Lackawanna County to set up a foster care program and other services for elderly persons. The county is to add $3,664 to the grant. The state contribution came out of a $216,000 appropriation to county institution districts for local services for older people.

Mrs. Ruth Grizz Horting, secretary of public welfare, said the aim of the program "is to make it easier for the aged to remain in their own homes or foster homes, instead of going into institutions."

The state grant was broken down this way:

Salary of a director of adult welfare, $4,725 (plus $1,175 from the county).

Counseling, $2,083 (the county will match this).

In 1942 the Declaration of Independence went on public display in the Library of Congress.
